

Biography

Waraporn Poolsatitiwat, PhD
Department of Oriental Languages,
Faculty of Archaeology, Silpakorn University, Thailand

She is currently a lecturer at the Department of Oriental Languages, Faculty of Archaeology, Silpakorn University and a chairman of the Master of Arts Program in Archives and Cultural Heritage Information, Silpakorn University. Her experience with records and archives started with the three months internships at the National Archives of Thailand in 1995 and has been increasingly developed by being a lecturer teaching history and English in various universities in Thailand since 1999. Due to the excellent academic profile with King Bhumibol academic awarded winning, she received a Thai government scholarship to study MA and PhD in Archives and Records Management at University of Liverpool in 2011. Her Master's dissertation and PhD's thesis related with the archival curriculum and professional development and this enrich her to interest in establishing the archival curriculum applicable for the Thai context, the approach to enhance the Thai archival profession, and the implementation of standardized records and archives management system in Thailand. In 2017, she was assigned for managing and teaching in ACHIM-SU. As a chairman of the program, a qualified archivist and a lecturer, she has taught and done many researches in the archival sciences. Her main teaching are records management, archival concepts and theory, archival appraisal, archival arrangement, and oral history. For five years as an academic in archives and records management, she published two research articles and finished two research projects. She also provides an archival knowledge to the Thai public in term of a short course training, and E-learning every year.